

Living the Three Principles of Abundance

10 Steps

-  1. Spend time alone and listen to the songs in your heart.
-  2. Acknowledge your ability and freedom to be a voluntary philanthropist by moving out of your giving comfort zone by making a commitment to a "stretch" gift.
-  3. Create a mental mantra of your vision for a better world to remind you of your empowerment to make a difference.
-  4. Talk to family and friends about your philanthropic goals; share with them your mission statement and help them craft one of their own.
-  5. Be prepared to face some disappointment in order to more abundantly reap the rewards of your risk to make a difference.
-  6. Recognize fear and uncertainty as healthy emotions that when properly channeled will build your confidence in making philanthropic decisions.
-  7. Make a resolution to live your mission statement each day by word, thought and deed.
-  8. Give yourself permission to enjoy the journey and be open to listen with your heart to the stories that surround you as you travel.
-  9. Keep a journal.
-  10. Remember that you can never do a kindness too soon or too often.